

MENTALLY REHEARSE THE UNEXPECTED

- ◆ Missing
- ◆ Hitting with NO Effect
- ◆ Getting Shot
- ◆ Having to Shoot a Woman or Child
- ◆ Having to Shoot an Animal
- ◆ Gun Problems

You must be totally committed to protecting yourself

© 2008 Matt Seibert
All Rights Reserved

Explain: If you mentally rehearse the unexpected, your brain will then have a map to follow should you experience one of the following issues. Visualize yourself in these kind of situations and taking the appropriate measures to correct them.

Click: Missing. . . Sound Wav . . . “Missed it by that much”

Explain: If you miss, you need to get back on the Gip (your front sight) and gently compress the trigger.

Click: Hitting with NO Effect. . . (wait for 5 shots) . . . Sound Wav ... “That's got to hurt.”

Explain: Maybe he's wearing body armor. Go for the head.

Click: Getting Shot . . . Sound Wav . . . “Son of a bitch must pay”

Explain: Getting shot, doesn't mean you're out of the fight. Get mad! Get on the Gip (your front sight) and solve the problem.

Click: Having to Shoot a Woman or Child. . . Sound Wav . . . “What are you prepared to do? . . .

Ask: Who can kill you deader, a 13-year-old or 40-year-old? A woman or man?

Explain: Realize, 70% of all violent crimes are committed by persons under the age of 17.

Click: Having to Shoot an Animal. . . ‘Shoot him now, shoot him now’ . . .

Explain: A vicious dog can cause great serious bodily harm. Head shots are most effective.

Click: Gun Problems. . . Sound Wav . . .

Explain: This is no time for self talk or an "Oh shoot"! You must revert to your training on malfunction clearance drills.

Click: You must be totally committed . . . Sound Wav

Explain: If you're not totally committed to protecting yourself, don't carry a gun!

Click for Next Slide